MANAGER, CORPORATE COMMUNICATIONS

FII is excited to offer a permanent full-time position for a communications professional to work collaboratively with staff across our organization to ensure the development and delivery of corporate communications activities in support of effective stakeholder engagement through a variety of products and services. Managing corporate communications and our engagement plan, the Manager works in close collaboration with the executive team and program staff on projects in progress. This includes, but is not limited to, oversight of the communications plan and the development and delivery of a sponsorship strategy and a variety of publications and presentations. The Manager is also responsible for tracking of, and planning for, executive engagement with key stakeholders in government and industry. Other core responsibilities include: planning the corporate communications calendar; writing and editing; governance support; event coordination; ensuring the currency of corporate materials; and the Year in Review Report; updating and maintaining company websites and social media posts. The Manager provides support in the preparation of briefing materials and event plans for major outgoing trade missions.

The successful candidate will be a self-starter holding a Degree in Communications, Journalism, Business Administration, Public Administration, or equivalent combination of knowledge and education and a minimum of five years' experience in a similar role. Previous experience related to a corporate communications role within an environment of international market development/business development, government or forestry management including media relations, would be an asset. We offer a competitive salary and comprehensive benefits package. Before applying, please go online to www.bcfii.ca to view the full job description.
